Thank you for your interest in the Teacher Ranger Teacher (TRT) program for 2018. The following list of parks have received funding from the National Park Service Washington office to host a teacher in the TRT program this summer. At this time, this list is not comprehensive and additional parks across the country are seeking approval to host a Teacher Ranger Teacher in 2018. Therefore, do not hesitate to reach out directly to parks to inquire and express interest to serving as a Teacher Ranger Teacher. Contact information for each park can be found at www.nps.gov.

Please note that most parks cannot offer housing or travel funds if you apply for an opportunity at a park not within a drivable distance from the teacher's home or school. Also, one of the primary goals of the program is to develop relationships between parks and their local education communities. We encourage teachers to inquire about the TRT program at NPS units in their local areas.

For more information about opportunities in a geographic area please contact the appropriate regional Teacher Ranger Teacher coordinator. A map of National Park Service regions and appropriate contacts can be found at www.teacherrangerteacher.org/home/contacts

If you have further questions about the program please contact the national program coordinator at linda\_rosenblum@nps.gov.

Sincerely,

Linda S. Rosenblum
